About the Shenandoah Valley Discovery Museum

Mission

The Shenandoah Valley Discovery Museum's mission is to spark curiosity & inspire learning through exploration & creative play.

History

Since opening in the spring of 1996, the Museum's mission had been fulfilled far beyond the expectations of the three founders who spearheaded its development. The original five exhibits based at 54 S. Loudoun Street in Winchester, Virginia and constructed by committed community volunteers instilled in children a sense of wonder and hunger for knowledge. In response to community demand, additional galleries were added to allow room for special exhibits and activities.

In May 2014, the Shenandoah Valley Discovery Museum (SVDM) moved to a newly renovated 1950's former furniture building off of the historic walking mall in downtown Winchester. The 19,200 sq. foot expanse of space lends a bright and welcoming environment where over 70,000 people visit annually. The new museum space has been a resounding success with 14 exhibitions, a rotating menu of weekly programs, and a retinue of partnerships and visiting educators.

Volunteers at SVDM

Members of the SVDM Teen Committee are considered volunteers of the museum. As a non-profit children focused organization, we strive to provide an environment where children and their caregivers can explore, play and learn in a safe and exciting place, and as a volunteer you can help us do that! The Discovery Museum began as a group of volunteers nearly 30 years ago and has continued to grow and thrive thanks to wonderful volunteers ever since
